Important Notes
Appropriate items for Electronic Reserve include lecture notes, past tests, an article from a magazine or journal (an unlimited number from the library subscription databases!), and a chapter from a book.

For more information, explore the library website for e-reserves guidelines or contact Connie Ferrara, Public Services Librarian (916-484-8040) to consult about e-reserves.

If you have used this article/chapter on a previous semester, and this item isn’t in the library subscription databases, instructors must obtain copyright permission before the library can make the material available again. Many times, copyright permission can be obtained online through the Copyright Clearance Center (www.copyright.com).
